Students impacted: 700 | Subject: Band

By purchasing enough tuners for all of the classes throughout the day, each individual player understands how and what to do to produce a better tone and the tendencies of each tone on their specific instrument. Most students do not have the resources to purchase this necessary additional equipment to help support them as they learn and work with their instruments. The purchase of the instrument, in many cases, stretches many families' budgets. Providing these resources for all students allows them to develop ongoing excellence. With daily use and concert use, the success of each student's control and production of tone can be measured. The audience will notice a difference in the ability of the students to control and adjust to tone tendencies as the students become more proficient with the tuners.
